

Job Title: Exercise Coach

We are a wearable tech company now standing up an office in La Jolla as part of a well-known startup incubator. We are looking for a 32-40 hour/week Exercise and Wellness Coach to work with our newest product line undergoing initial trials.

No certifications necessary - we will train and provide all materials. All interaction with users is done via phone, Skype, or email and centers around a very specific exercise regimen. No health experience necessary, but an interest in health would be great. An undergraduate degree in some type of health science would be even better, but we will consider all backgrounds.

Additional administrative duties may be assigned as well, so we will need a willingness to pitch in and help the team with tasks as needed.

We have a team of 10 that work in our Phoenix, AZ office and remotely, but you will be the main presence in our La Jolla location. Our CEO and various staff will work from La Jolla occasionally as well, and there are other startup companies that work out of that office.

Would be a perfect fit for a grad student, and we can be flexible around time to attend class, etc.
Requirements:

- Self-starter who can work independently
- Team player willing to take on multiple tasks and roles as the company grows
- Willingness to coach study participants remotely on designated exercise program
- College graduate
- Able to commit to 32-40 hours/week

Please send your resume and cover letter to jobs@goxlabs.com. We will be in doing in person interviews.

Marlo Hitt, RN
Director of Operations
GoX Studio